Q&A

Which shares can you redeem?

- ▶ For retirement criteria and redemption at the age of 65, Fondaction may redeem all eligible shares, that is, those you have held for at least 2 years.
- ▶ Fondaction may redeem all shares in order to close the account when the balance is lower than $1,500.

At what price can you redeem your shares?

- ▶ Shares are redeemed at the share price in effect at the time of the redemption.
- ▶ Shares are valued twice yearly and the price is usually published toward the 4th week of both December and June.
First valuation period: December 1st until the value is published in December
Second valuation period: June 1st until the value is published in June
- ▶ When a transaction is requested during a valuation period under a retirement criterion or under the "65 years of age" criterion, the shareholder may choose the processing date. They may choose to redeem the shares at their value on the redemption date, or wait until the new share value is published, in which case the shares will be redeemed at the most favourable price for the shareholder.

Will I be able to purchase Fondaction shares again after this redemption?

Yes, you will be able to purchase shares again; however:

- ▶ A redemption for reason of retirement (or pre-retirement) makes you ineligible for tax credits for subscriptions made in the future and subscriptions made during the year of the redemption.
- ▶ As of January 1st of the year you reach the age of 65, you are no longer eligible for tax credits.

May I keep an RRSP with Fondaction my entire life?

No. Under the current tax laws, you must necessarily convert all your RRSPs into retirement income by December 31 of the year during which you reach the age of 71.

Do I have to pay tax on shares redeemed from an RRSP?

- ▶ Upon the redemption of shares from an RRSP, the total sum is taxable in accordance with tax laws and must be included in income tax returns of the year in which the redemption is processed. Like any other financial institution, Fondaction has the obligation to withhold taxes according to the applicable amount and remit them to both levels of government.
- ▶ No taxes are withheld if you transfer the redemption proceeds from your RRSP with Fondaction to another financial institution into another registered plan such as an RRSP, into an annuity or a registered retirement income fund (RRIF).
- ▶ For a spousal RRSP account, the tax consequences of the redemption are generally assumed by the shareholder; however, pursuant to a tax rule commonly called the “three-year” rule, every contribution (with Fondaction or elsewhere) must be invested for a period of at least three calendar years, in order for the contributing spouse to be exempt from taxation on the amount redeemed. This rule does not apply in the case of a transfer to a spousal RRSP with another financial institution.

TAX WITHHELD FROM AMOUNTS WITHDRAWN FROM AN RRSP. THESE NUMBERS ARE SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

Redeemed amount (gross)	Québec	Canada	Total
$5,000 or less	14%	5%	19%
$5,000.01 - $15,000	14%	10%	24%
$15,000.01 or more	14%	15%	29%

Do I have to pay tax on shares in a non-registered savings plan?

- ▶ No taxes are withheld.
- ▶ Fondaction issues tax slips following the redemption of shares held in a non-registered plan. When preparing your tax returns, you must submit the capital gain or loss.
- ▶ For the purposes of this calculation, this information is available on the tax slips issued by Fondaction.

Once my redemption application is sent, when will the payment be made?

- ▶ The share redemption is carried out within a reasonable time frame. This time frame generally does not exceed 30 days after receipt of all documentation and information required for the file. In cases where the application is incomplete or supporting documents are missing or incomplete, you will have 30 days to provide them, in default thereof Fondaction may close your application and you will then need to submit a new one.
- ▶ You will receive a transaction notice in the days following the payment.
